

Csaba Csetneki – Speaker, Host

Biography

Csaba Csetneki is a professional business coach trainer and mentor, internationally credentialed by ICF as Professional Certified Coach. He is interpreting embodiment, mindfulness and dance related experience into the fields of corporate and organizational environment via working with business and private professionals, leaders in various development projects.

Csaba offers more than 15 years of experience in the service and management consulting industry. He holds MSc of engineering and teaching, also a postgraduate degree in business coaching. He pursued further education in sports coaching, team coaching, training and facilitating in Hungary, Germany and UK.

Csaba functions as the President of ICF Hungary Chartered Chapter and as Ambassador of Hungarian Coaching Review. He runs his own coaching and training business and is a lecturer at Budapest Metropolitan University postgraduate coaching course. He is a regular publicist and speaker of professional events and organizations in and outside of Hungary.

Speech: Prism Awards Panel

In his opening speech Csaba Csetneki PCC is addressing questions such as the relevance of international cooperation and knowledge, experience sharing, challenges and possibilities of inter- and multicultural environment. Coaching alongside with other development tools has gone through several changes and is always evolving. Whilst working out very good and effective tools and methodologies it is outmost relevant that the coaching profession and approach keeps on being a resilient and flexible style of professional development for both the client and coaches side. This is the way to secure a thriving and beneficial future for both the organizations and the coaching profession, hence the relevant topic of this conference.